Early Life

Born and brought up in Secunderabad city, India, SHAYAN came to London after tragically losing both his parents at a young age. His mother, Mrs Mahrook Italia, died within a year of being diagnosed having Multiple Myeloma. His father, Dr Fareed Jamshid Italia, died a year later having suffered from Multiple Sclerosis for approximately 20 years.

Education

SHAYAN did his schooling at The Doon School, Dehradun. He then went on to acquire a Bachelors Degree in International Trade Practices and Procedures from Nizam College at Osmania University. Upon coming to the United Kingdom the same year, SHAYAN sought loans from various banks and educated himself over the next couple of years attaining two well recognized post graduate music degrees in the process; a Bachelors Degree in Audio Engineering from the Alchemea College of Audio Engineering and a Masters Degree in Music Business Management from the University of Westminster.

Songwriting

SHAYAN unexpectedly acquired his ability to write songs upon losing his mother. Drawing inspiration from real life scenarios, the prolific songwriter currently has a standing catalogue of over 100 songs.

When asked about the irony that he be from India, yet writes mainstream English songs, SHAYAN proudly states that his music incorporates the three best elements of Indian music into his work; poetic lyrics, simple yet powerful music arrangements and crystal clear vocals.

Singing

Initially SHAYAN set out to be a songwriter. It wasn't until he recorded demos of two of his songs during his sound engineering course, sung by professional singers, that he quickly realized only he could sing his songs best. He says, "there was just no soul in the music when others attempted to sing them. For some reason the meaning of the songs were lost through their deliverance."

SHAYAN's first attempt at singing his own songs was when he sung a live version of his song "Soul (When I say I love you)" for BBC 4's long time running radio show "Desert Island Discs". He became the first unsigned and unpublished music artist to appear on the show.

Touring

Prior to any recordings, SHAYAN toured 18 cities in the United Kingdom playing to approx 25,000 people in total. His performance at The Royal Albert Hall in London was described by Time Out as "fresh, vibrant, emotive and the audience was hooked from start to finish". The article aptly concluded, "If each future performance racks up to the stature of the one witnessed, the UK surely has a superstar in the making."

Financial Breakthroughs

SHAYAN became the first person in history to auction a portion of his life's earnings in music on EBay. He raised £9,000 in 7 days. His actions are spoken about in detail within his exclusive interview with Sir David Frost.

Family

SHAYAN's immediate family consists of one elder brother, Dynshaw Italia, who is a qualified Chartered Accountant from KPMG and his sister-in-law Dolly Italia who is a qualified Chartered Account from Pricewaterhousecoopers and has an MBA from the Huron University in London. His brother Dynshaw Italia is a two-time award winning Finance Director honoured at the Accountancy Age Awards in London.
